Background: Jayson Morris Grow up in poverty, raised by a single mother and lives with multiple disabilities. He knows what it is like to be disadvantaged. However, he also knows what opportunities and progressiveness look like because he did it. He is a full-time progressive community advocate and has been homeless, on SSDI, rents and uses food stamps, but he also holds a BS in Electrical Engineering, a MBA in Business Administration and he is working on his doctorate. He is an active community member with a background in many challenging areas and would love the chance to give back to the community by serving on the Commission and offering his expertise to cultivate an accessible and inclusive community for people with disabilities. He has a demonstrated commitment to public service, appreciation for vigorous discussion, and willingness to work hard to accomplish meaningful goals for the Commission, our city members, and community at-large. He hopes to ensure that individuals with disabilities are afforded an equal opportunity to participate in and benefit from the programs, services, and activities of the City of Seattle thus making a significant contribution to the governance of our community.
