Background: Becky Scurlock is an 18-year-old senior at Lakeside School, and has always lived in Seattle. She is excited to start her second year on the Seattle Youth Commission and is confident about the progress she and other students can make on local issues. For the past couple years, Becky has been working to create a website that provides resources and inspiration to young people who want to make an impact on social issues. She is also very involved in her school's leadership positions, participating in the Student Health Advocacy Committee, Leadership Institute, Service Learning Advisory Board, and Student Dialogue Facilitation Program. Becky sees the Seattle Youth Commission as a fantastic opportunity to expand beyond her school to make a difference on the city level. In her free time, Becky also enjoys running, playing the viola, and participating in Model United Nations.
