What We Heard From the Community

Summary of Comments/Questions Received Via Website Comment Form, Project Email and Project Survey:

Design-Related Comments

- Design. 50 percent of survey respondents said environmentally-friendly features are most important to them in a new building on this property; 25 percent said attractive materials; 25 percent said interesting and unique design; 25 percent said parking; and 13 said relationship to neighborhood character. Several respondents encouraged attractive, quality, classy and mindful design that gives unique personality to the structure, furthering character that lends itself to 300, 30 and 3 feet away, drawing inspiration from the history and present day of the area, and using good quality construction and building materials.
- Exterior & Landscaping. 56 percent of survey respondents said lighting and safety features are the most important consideration for the exterior space on this property; 44 percent said landscaping; 22 percent said seating options and places to congregate; and 11 percent said bike parking. A couple of respondents encouraged creating a welcoming streetscape, planting trees, landscaping in ways that support wildlife and clean air, and facilitating bike-ways.
- Security. A few respondents encouraged having a good plan for security in and around the building and making the surrounding area feel safe because the City does not enforce laws in Ballard.
- Height/Views. A few respondents expressed concern that lost views of the ship canal, cityscape and Mt. Rainier will have a major impact on neighbors, and encouraged the project team to create spaces for neighbors to access the south side of the building so they can continue to see the canal and working vessels.
- Impacts. A few respondents encouraged the project team to have respect for the neighborhood including doing their best to be good neighbors to people already living there and considering short-term noise, disruption and aesthetics.
- Density. One respondent encouraged intelligent density planning of 500+ units that allows for open space and doesn't attract congestion or clog up the streets with more cars.

Non-Design-Related Comments

- Retail. 80 percent of survey respondents said new places for coffee or breakfast are the retail components they're most interested in for this location; 30 percent said new restaurants or bars; 20 percent said new stores for shopping; and 10 percent said spaces for the community. Additionally, 60 percent of survey respondents said thoughtful design that is open and welcoming is what inspires them to return to a building, office, restaurant or retailer; 60 percent said a sense of openness and natural light; 50 percent said local businesses / small businesses; 40 percent said great people and service; 20 percent said calm, restful places to reflect and relax; and 10 percent said color and materials used in design. One respondent encouraged providing shops, restaurants and establishments to support the population increase. Another discouraged having bars/nightclubs, because this is a quieter and more residential section than east of 24th St, and would be inappropriate. One respondent encouraged having a bike café with green landscaping. One respondent noted that 54th St has a lot of junk laying around and another noted this building will have to make a compelling case for the future revitalization of 54th and may have carte blanche in defining the character of 26th St.
- Parking & Traffic. A few respondents encouraged the project team to take into consideration how much traffic will increase and make sure there is adequate parking. Another respondent expressed support for underground parking as streets are narrow and parking is at a premium.
- Affordability/Equity. One respondent encouraged the project team to support low-income residents as gentrification has forced a lot of people out of their homes and high-density residential buildings should give back to and serve their communities. Another respondent encouraged equitable access for all community members.
- Maintenance. One respondent encouraged the building be well-maintained.
- Connectivity. One respondent expressed concern that tall buildings block signals for cell phone, internet and TV.

Miscellaneous Comments

- Support. One respondent noted that they love the location of this site, its proximity to the Ballard Locks, the Nordic Museum and historic Ballard Avenue; that it clearly has a lot of untapped potential and they look forward to seeing what comes of it. Another respondent noted that they think Mithun is a great firm for building in Ballard and they're excited to see what comes about. One respondent noted that development of this site is long overdue and that they look forward to the developer bring more housing to this part of Ballard.

Project Vision

This project proposes a new multi-family building in the heart of Ballard, within walking distance of the Ballard Historic District, a stone's throw from the acclaimed Nordic Museum, and conveniently-located close to future light rail access to downtown Seattle.

The building will feature approximately 148 residential units—including a mix of studios, one-bedroom and two-bedroom apartments.

The ground floor will include retail space along NW Market Street, residential amenities and street-level units that step out onto NW 54th Street.

One level of underground parking will be provided for residents. The project site is located within the Ballard Urban Village and features views of the ship canal to the south.

This development will create contemporary, thoughtfully-designed, high-quality homes and contribute to the vibrant Ballard Urban Village, with an aesthetic inspired by modern Nordic design.

- Density. One respondent encouraged intelligent density planning of 500+ units that allows for open space and doesn't attract congestion or clog up the streets with more cars.

Non-Design-Related Comments

- Retail. 80 percent of survey respondents said new places for coffee or breakfast are the retail components they're most interested in for this location; 30 percent said new restaurants or bars; 20 percent said new stores for shopping; and 10 percent said spaces for the community. Additionally, 60 percent of survey respondents said thoughtful design that is open and welcoming is what inspires them to return to a building, office, restaurant or retailer; 60 percent said a sense of openness and natural light; 50 percent said local businesses / small businesses; 40 percent said great people and service; 20 percent said calm, restful places to reflect and relax; and 10 percent said color and materials used in design. One respondent encouraged providing shops, restaurants and establishments to support the population increase. Another discouraged having bars/nightclubs, because this is a quieter and more residential section than east of 24th St, and would be inappropriate. One respondent encouraged having a bike café with green landscaping. One respondent noted that 54th St has a lot of junk laying around and another noted this building will have to make a compelling case for the future revitalization of 54th and may have carte blanche in defining the character of 26th St.

- Parking & Traffic. A few respondents encouraged the project team to take into consideration how much traffic will increase and make sure there is adequate parking. Another respondent expressed support for underground parking as streets are narrow and parking is at a premium.
- Affordability/Equity. One respondent encouraged the project team to support low-income residents as gentrification has forced a lot of people out of their homes and high-density residential buildings should give back to and serve their communities. Another respondent encouraged equitable access for all community members.
- Maintenance. One respondent encouraged the building be well-maintained.
- Connectivity. One respondent expressed concern that tall buildings block signals for cell phone, internet and TV.

Miscellaneous Comments

- Support. One respondent noted that they love the location of this site, its proximity to the Ballard Locks, the Nordic Museum and historic Ballard Avenue; that it clearly has a lot of untapped potential and they look forward to seeing what comes of it. Another respondent noted that they think Mithun is a great firm for building in Ballard and they're excited to see what comes about. One respondent noted that development of this site is long overdue and that they look forward to the developer bring more housing to this part of Ballard.
