Priority Hire Ordinance: Three Cornerstones

- 1. *Invests in and directs outreach, recruitment and training of prioritized individuals for construction - women, people of color, and those from disadvantaged neighborhoods.
- 2. *Directs a Community Workforce Agreement (CWA) for City public works above $5 million.
 - Master agreement between the City and construction trade unions to set worksite conditions, protocols, dispute resolution steps, and dispatch of workers.
- 3. *Directs the union halls to prioritize and dispatch workers from priority ZIP codes.

Why a CWA?

- Recognizes upcoming labor shortages in the local market while construction is rapidly increasing and workforce is aging. Labor shortage leads to increase in worker demand and an increase in job costs.
- All contractors have access to union workforce.
- Puts wages back into communities that need it most.
- Reduces the risk of project delays resulting from disputes or labor shortages.
- Eliminates risk of strikes on CWA projects.
- Provides consistency and longevity in implementing priority hiring.

Does it work?

“The Seawall project is the most diverse jobsite I’ve been on. We need to have workers reflect our community. Everyone needs the same opportunity I’ve had. My goal is that the Seawall job is just the new normal.”

- Marge Newgent, Business Agent Operating Engineers Local 302

Collaboration

Collaboration: City Role

- Convening a regional collaboration of pre-apprenticeship training programs, construction and union partners.
- Meeting with colleagues at King County, Sound Transit, Port of Seattle, and Washington State on expanding this work and growing the regional workforce supply needs.
- Chairing and staffing the Priority Hire Advisory Council.

Priority Hire Advisory Committee

2015: Committee established. Advised on outreach, referral process, director's rule, regional collaboration, and other issues.

2016 Plans:

- Outreach and training partner guidance.
- Dispatch inventory and mapping.
- Process improvement recommendations.
- Expanding priority hire, and regional planning.
- Improving pre-apprenticeship entry outcomes.

Emerging Issues: Supporting the Priority Hire pipeline

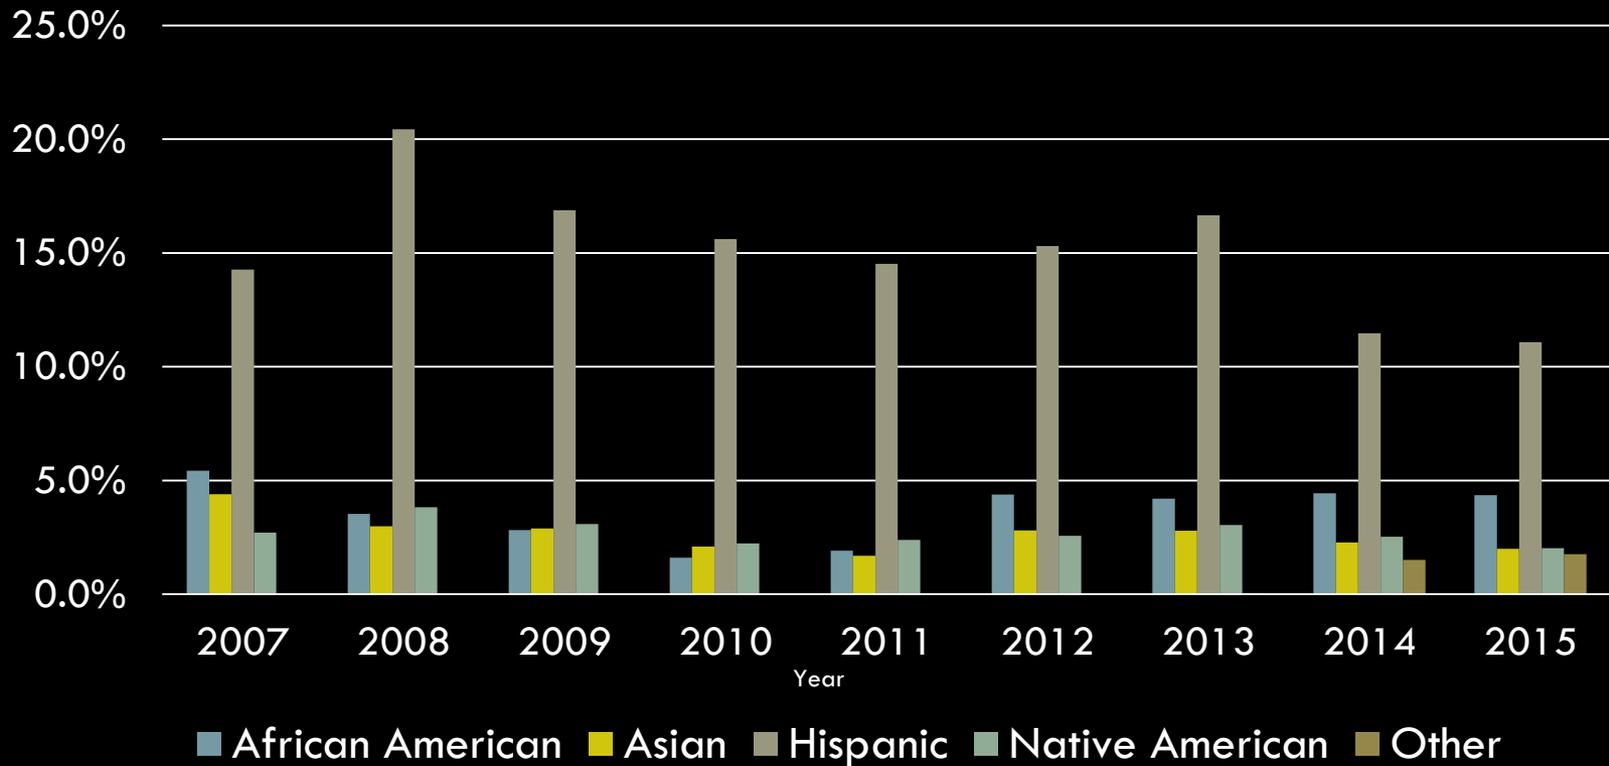

- Drop in workers of color.
- Construction culture.
- Licensing.
- Regional collaboration.

Workers of color: Understanding the drop

- Drop is in journey-level workers (25.2% past to 21.4% on all projects currently).
- Increase in apprentices of color (31.6% to 36.3%).

11/18/13 – 12/31/15	Priority Hire Projects (679,419 hours)	Non-PH Projects (858,157 hours)	Total all City Projects (1,537,576 hours)	Past Performance
Journey
People of Color	21.3%	21.5%	21.4%	25.2%
Apprentice
People of Color	50.0%	24.2%	36.3%	31.6%

JOURNEY UTILIZATION TRENDS FOR PEOPLE OF COLOR

Journey Workers of color: Ongoing research

- Data shows drop is in Latino/Latina workers.
- Ongoing research - Is this drop industry wide? Are there changes in the regional population? Is there anecdotal information based on experiences from community experts?
- More data will be available as more projects have reported significant work hours, to help determine any lasting trends.

Construction Culture

- How do we prepare the construction workplace and/or new workers?
- Are mentorships needed?
- Enforcing contractual obligations.

Licensing as a barrier for workers

- Drivers licenses are required to enter an apprenticeship, but many candidates have suspended licenses or never got a license.
- LELO: Contract for relicensing services.
- Community organizations are discussing policy and procedure changes to improve the relicensing process.

Successes

- Performance is strong, and the pipeline is building.
- Enforcement efforts are providing workers a venue to come forward with issues as needed.
- Six contracts with community providers – 3 training programs, 1 service provider, and 2 outreach organizations, including involvement by small, community-based groups.
- Priority Hire is changing business as usual.

Next Steps: Reporting back

- Council CRUEDA presentation in September.
- Formal year-end report from City/FAS to council and Mayor in January 2017.
- Formal year-end report from Advisory Group to council and Mayor in January 2017.
