WHEREAS, the “food security gap” affects many people who are not eligible for SNAP benefits but struggle to afford healthy food, particularly as the cost of living in Seattle continues to increase; and

WHEREAS, The City of Seattle’s Equity and Environment Agenda identifies addressing the lack of access to healthy, affordable food as a major priority for communities in Seattle; and

WHEREAS, Seattle has the opportunity to build on successful programs to expand access to healthy foods to low-income residents ineligible for SNAP; and

WHEREAS, according to a 2017 working paper from the Hutchins Center on Fiscal & Monetary Policy at the Brookings Institution, children from birth to age five whose mothers received subsidies for nutritious food had better health and economic outcomes as adults, including lower incidence of metabolic syndromes; and

1 WHEREAS, according to “Early Childhood Experiences Shape Health and Well-Being 2 Throughout Life,” a 2014 issue brief from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, 3 participants receiving early childhood interventions not only have increased social,
4 emotional, and cognitive development, but also lower risks for heart disease and diabetes

15 community health, including the rise of type 2 diabetes and the doubling of obesity rates 16 among children in the past 30 years; and

17 WHEREAS, despite significant efforts to provide an equitable education system, there persists
18 an opportunity gap between white students and students of color, with Seattle Public 19 Schools students of color meeting third grade reading standards at a rate 31 percent lower 20 than white students; and

21 WHEREAS, the City desires to impose a tax on the business of distributing sweetened beverages 22 to raise revenue to fund services that will promote healthy food choices, expand access to

7 high school graduates to enter college, and expanding services for the birth-to-five population

6 * * *

7 K. “Delivery” means the transfer of possession of tangible personal property between 8 the seller and the buyer or the buyer’s representative. Delivery to an employee of a buyer is 9 considered delivery to the buyer. Transfer of possession of tangible personal property occurs 10 when the buyer or the buyer’s representative first takes physical control of the property or 11 exercises dominion and control over the property. Dominion and control means the buyer has the 12 ability to put the property to the buyer’s own purposes. It means the buyer or the buyer’s 13 representative has made the final decision to accept or reject the property, and the seller has no 14 further right to possession of the property and the buyer has no right to return the property to the 15 seller, other than under a warranty contract. A buyer does not exercise dominion and control over 16 tangible personal property merely by arranging for shipment of the property from the seller to 17 itself. A buyer’s representative is a person, other than an employee of the buyer, who is 18 authorized in writing by the buyer to receive tangible personal property and take dominion and 19 control by making the final decision to accept or reject the property. Neither a shipping company 20 nor a seller can serve as a buyer’s representative. It is immaterial where the contract of sale is 21 negotiated or where the buyer obtains title to the property. Delivery terms and other provisions of 22 the Uniform Commercial Code (Title 62A RCW) do not determine when or where delivery of 23 tangible personal property occurs for purposes of Seattle’s business license tax or Seattle’s

1 sweetened beverage tax. For purposes of Chapter 5.53, the term “seller” as used in this 2 subsection 5.30.025.K shall include any distributor and the term “buyer” as used in this 3 subsection 5.30.025.K shall include any recipient who offers the delivered products for retail 4 sale.
