

Lily Baumgart is Seattle's current Youth Poet Laureate. She has been writing since before she can remember but became more serious with her poetry after becoming a part of Jack Straw's inaugural Young Writers Program in 2016 and Seattle's Youth Poet Laureate Finalist Cohort in 2016/17. She draws inspiration from relationships between people, nature, and self. She believes that all writing is forever changing itself and the lives of readers. She hopes that her poetry can serve as a small and introspective escape for those who live inherently political lives.