WHEREAS, it is the Seattle City Council's intent to ensure protection of the human rights as set forth in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights to all persons as they relate to biased policing activities and to require the policies, training, and data that safeguards against such activities in Seattle; and

WHEREAS, after a Department of Justice (DOJ) investigation found in 2011 that the Seattle Police Department (SPD) engaged in an unconstitutional pattern of excessive force and bias, Seattle entered into a Consent Decree with the DOJ that requires the City to ensure that its policing services comply with the Constitution; and

WHEREAS, in Seattle and nationally, the increasing use of militarized units such as SWAT Teams, by the police has been demonstrated to disproportionately harm Black, Indigenous, and other People of Color; and

WHEREAS, even after nearly a decade of Seattle being subject to the Consent Decree, communities of color still experience disproportionate police use of force, as exemplified by the Seattle Police Department's 2019 Annual Use of Force Report, which found that of male individuals subjected to use of force by Seattle police in 2019, 30 percent of those individuals were Black, while Black people constitute only seven percent of Seattle's population; and

WHEREAS, in response to SPD's well-documented complaints of excessive force, including chemical weapons against thousands of protestors during the Black Lives Matter uprisings in response to the murder of George Floyd in the late Spring and Summer of 2020, the Seattle City Council took steps toward defunding SPD during the summer emergency budget vote and the 2021 city budget; and

WHEREAS, federal law, including 22 U.S.C. 2304, prohibits any United States law enforcement agency from providing security assistance to any country the government of which engages in a "consistent pattern of gross violations of internationally recognized human rights,” including “torture or cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment, prolonged detention without charges and trial, causing the disappearance of persons by the abduction and clandestine detention of those persons, and other flagrant denial of the right to life, liberty, or the security of person;” and

WHEREAS, the UN Declaration on Human Rights, together with the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights and its two Optional Protocols (including the complaints procedure and on the death penalty) and the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights and its Optional Protocol, form the International Bill of Human Rights; and

WHEREAS, United Nations bodies periodically monitor states for compliance with these international human rights covenants that are part of the International Bill of Human Rights; and

WHEREAS, the Fourth Geneva Convention addresses humanitarian protections for civilians in a war zone, in armed conflicts where war has not been declared, and in an occupation of another country's territory; and

WHEREAS, the International Court of Justice, established in 1945 as the principal judicial organ of the United Nations (UN), is responsible for settling, in accordance with international law, legal disputes submitted to it by states and to give advisory opinions on legal questions referred to it by authorized United Nations organs and specialized agencies.

WHEREAS, The City of Seattle wishes to promote an encompassing vision for public safety that moves towards the abandonment of militarization and instead embraces other markers of wellness, such as respecting and protecting civil and human rights, and providing its people with access to resources including affordable housing, health services, and public transportation; NOW, THEREFORE,
