| Background:Rico Quirindongo’s qualifications are rooted in his depth and breadth of experience in the private, public and academic sectors. He earned his degree in Architecture from the University of Washington, where he would later return to facilitate the UW College of Built Environments Strategic Planning Process. He brings decades of experience practicing in both the architecture and planning fields, designing community assets like Seattle’s Northwest African American Museum. As former Council Chair of the Pike Place Market Preservation & Development Authority, Rico was intensely focused on community building and finding consensus. As a former board member of the Historic Seattle PDA, he’s committed to preserving Seattle’s treasured places in the midst of Seattle’s increasing population. Rico’s diversity of experience and his commitment to embracing and managing growth while considering impacts to Seattle’s people, neighborhood institutions, and intrinsic character is what makes him the clear and obvious choice for Director of Seattle’s OPCD. |   |   |
