Career Highlights

- ✓ Launched a CIF podcast in early 2020, taking full ownership for researching logistics, program planning and production, equipment, operations, and staffing.

Produce an average of 15 episodes each year for a growing audience, with each segment enjoying 500 to 700 downloads within 30 days of release.

The podcast remains an affordable tactic to attract new partners, share best practices, and maintain year-round relevance and visibility.

- ✓ Quickly pivoted planning in March 2020 to accommodate a shift to make CIF's sole in-person summit—scheduled for May 2020—100% virtual.

After championing the shift to remote programming, led communications efforts to onboard new attendees and launched five weekly webinars between March and April. In addition to addressing audience concerns about logistics for remote work operations, the webinar series attracted hundreds of participants each week and functioned as soft advertising for the pending summit.

The event's 35+ sessions included keynotes, speakers, and panelists to attract 1,500+ attendees—50% more than anticipated—to become CIF's biggest event in its history for more revenue than an on-site program.
