Background: Billy Hetherington is a second generation laborer, raised in a union household. He grew up in Covington, Washington with the guidance of his father, a retired 43 year member of the Laborers, and a mother who worked for the United States Postal Service and other union organizations. As a graduate in Business Law from WSU with aspirations of studying Labor Law, he took a break from school to save up for tuition. After trying a career in banking, he found that his real passion was working with his hands, while enjoying the financial comfort that a union job in the construction industry provided him. He returned to work with Laborers Local 242 after working several summers while in college. The experience and lessons he learned while working in the field with the members of his Local turned his attention to giving back. He joined the training school as an apprentice coordinator in 2017. Mentoring the next generation of laborers became a passion. In 2018 became Assistant Political Director of Local 242, and then moved into the Director role in 2020. He now advocates for labor standards and safety in his industry, while looking to expand the opportunities for our members.
