Background: Katie Wilson is a co-founder and the General Secretary of the Transit Riders Union, a King County based membership organization which advocates on issues ranging from public transit and affordable housing to labor standards and tax policy. Katie has over ten years of experience in grassroots organizing, campaign coordination, and public policy. She has served on a number of boards and task forces, including (for the City of Seattle) the Seattle Transit Advisory Board, the Seattle Progressive Revenue Task Force on Housing and Homelessness, and the Revenue Stabilization Workgroup. Katie has been a Seattle resident for almost 20 years and has lived car-free in several neighborhoods; in addition to riding transit and walking she often gets around the city by bike, which she finds both enjoyable and terrifying. She is also a new mother and hopes to help make Seattle into a city where families of all incomes and backgrounds can thrive.
