Background: Michael Padilla currently works for Seattle Works as a Development and Communications Manager. He has experience helping create strong communities through campus organizing, community organization, and advocating for progressive policies. He was born in Cuernavaca, Mexico but was raised in Washington state, and graduated from the University of Washington with a bachelor's in political science. His studies there focused on how government policies can best foster sustainable social, economic, and political progress for marginalized communities in an inclusive manner. He also possesses an associate's degree in Civil Engineering from Lake Washington Technical College where his studies helped him gain an understanding of smart urban planning and development. He strives to continue using his knowledge and experience in a way that is inclusive of the voices and leaders of the city's marginalized communities. Michael is ready to work with the Renters' Commission to help advise the Mayor and City Council in developing policy that doesn't leave anyone behind.
