Background: Tina Marie Tyler is an award-winning American television news and entertainment presenter, executive producer, music executive, and global peace activist. Widely credited as the first African American woman to partner with Microsoft to bring black video content and a monetization model to MSN Video in the early 2000s, Tyler went on to become the "face" of MSN Entertainment, covering high-profile events and celebrity newsmakers. Tyler's news credits include ABC News, PBS, EXTRA!, and Fox 11 LA. As an Advisory Board member and executive producer at The Hip Hop Museum, Tyler was instrumental in creating compelling livestream and live music events such as Hip-Hop and Mental Health: Facing The Stigma Together in association with the GRAMMY Museum, Recording Academy and MusiCares, The State of Black Music, It's Time For Hip Hop in NYC (four borough hip-hop music festival) in partnership with the City of New York, and the Hip Hop Science Project, in association with the Simons Foundation. In 2020, Tyler created and produced the International Peace Day broadcast, "Hip Hop 4 Peace," which featured hip-hop artists from over 20 countries. The video was included in the United Nations International Day of Peace broadcast. Currently, Tyler is the Founder and CEO of Hip Hop Institute 4 Peace, a global NGO dedicated to peace through hip hop culture, and a member of the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) Clubs, Centres, and Associations. She also serves as the President of the California Chapter, United States Federation, UNESCO.
